# 3

Students grasp the importance of leadership, teamwork, teaching, and responsibility when their adoption of these values makes an immediate and course-defining difference

# 4

The advantages of working together in an interprofessional team is best taught in real-world situations where students are confronted with problems outside their scope of training

#5

Physician leadership is a skill best practiced in the real world where decisions make a difference

#7

Faculty mentorship is actively sought by student leaders to augment their own knowledge and research when presented with challenges for which they feel responsible
